9-Man

DVD 89 min 2014
 DVD 4405
 Documents a unique streetball tournament played by Chinese-Americans in the heart of Chinatowns across the USA and Canada. "Once a year, Labor Day weekend marks the culmination of a summer's worth of early mornings, late nights and hours of practice. It's where for some, a local playground is remembered as a benchmark in history and for others, a place that must be forgotten. It's where bitter rivals will battle by day only to become better friends by night. And it's where one team will eventually find glory and etch its place in the 80-year history of the game. For many Chinese American athletes, Labor Day is dedicated to one thing and one thing only: nine-man. 9-MAN follows the history of the game, from the discrimination that many Chinese American immigrants faced in the 1930s to the physical and emotional battles that take place on the courts. Pivoting between the action on the parking lots and the late-night parties, the film captures the spirit of nine-man, as the players not only battle for a championship, but fight to preserve the sport they love"—Kevin Lee, CAAMfest website.

The Act of Killing
 DVD 122 min 2012
 DVD 4076
 Documentary about the Indonesian killings of 1965-66 directed by Joshua Oppenheimer, and co-directed by Christine Cynn and an anonymous Indonesian. The film focuses on an ostensibly anti-communist purge in which more than 500,000 people were killed. Invited by Oppenheimer, former black market gangster Anwar Congo and his friends recount and re-enact their experiences and some of their killings for the cameras, and make dramatic scenes depicting their memories and feelings about the killings. The scenes are produced in the style of their favorite film genres: gangster, western, and musical. Various aspects of Anwar and his friends' filmmaking process are shown, but as they begin to dramatize Anwar's own nightmares, the fiction scenes begin to take over the film's form, leading the film to become increasingly surreal. Oppenheimer has called the result "a documentary of the imagination". Indonesian dialogue with English subtitles.

The architect Daniel Brenner is in his late thirties when he receives his first challenging and lucrative commission: to design a cultural center for a satellite town in East-Berlin. He accepts the offer under the condition that he gets to choose who he works with. This way, he reunites with former colleagues and friends - most of them architects or students of architecture who have since chosen a different profession due to personal restraint or economic confinement. Together, they develop a concept which they hope will be more appealing to the public than the conventional and dull constructions common to the German Democratic Republic. However, their ambitious plans are once and again foiled by their conservative supervisors.

Army of ShadowsDVD 145 min 1969
DVD 2746

Set in German-occupied Lyons during WWII, Jean-Pierre Melville's film concerns a French Resistance fighter (Lino Ventura) who is betrayed by an informer and sent to a prison camp, where he awaits the Gestapo. Based on Joseph Kessel's novel, Army of Shadows is one of Melville's most personal works, because he was a Resistance fighter himself. With Paul Meurisse, Jean-Pierre Cassel, and Simone Signoret. Criterion 2-disc edition includes a rare short documentary, Le Journal de la Resistance (1944) shot on the front lines of the final days of German-occupied France.

Bitter Victory

 DVD 1992
 Richard Burton and Curd Jurgens play rival military officers assigned to execute a daring commando raid on General Rommel's fortress during WWII. Much of their animosity stems from the fact that Captain Leith (Burton) was once involved with the wife (Ruth Roman) of Major Brand (Jurgens), but Brand's inability to demonstrate courage-under-fire provokes jealousy, resentment, and shame. Burton and Jurgens give tour-de-force performances in their respective roles and Nicholas Ray's bold, black-and-white 'Scope compositions give the film a lyrical beauty. It was in his review of this 1957 film that Godard famously wrote, "Nicholas Ray is cinema". (b&w)

Go inside the bodies of two women whose natural systems each must deal with foreign organisms trying to control its host: a flu virus and a growing fetus. The body's reaction to and changes from each "invader" are truly remarkable. An 11-year-old girl with a broken arm and an 87-year-old man vividly illustrate the differences in the way a young body heals itself and the way an old one struggles. See how the body repairs itself after an injury - and how these very repairs lead to our eventual demise.

Devil's PlaygroundDVD 77 min 2002
DVD 2373

The Devil's Playground is a fascinating and moving documentary about a little-known aspect of Amish life. Amish are not permitted to join the church until their late teens, and have to do so of their own volition. The film explores rumspringa, wherein young Amish are given the opportunity to explore the "English" way of life. Filmmaker Lucy Walker tracked a few of these young people over the course of their experience. The film shows how difficult it is for them to break away from the church. Many of them "act out," exploring not just Nintendo and rock music, but alcohol, drugs, and sex. But almost all of them return to the church, and this fairly balanced documentary makes it clear that despite the church's stance, there is tremendous pressure, both economic and emotional, on these kids to return to the fold. The film focuses on a young man, Faron, who develops a serious drug problem and decides not to get baptized, and a young woman, Velda, who was baptized, and then later, suffering from acute depression, made the difficult decision to leave the church. Walker successfully captures the compelling details of this formerly closed and forbidding world, and the essentially ordinary kids who inhabit it.

DVD 2916

The hero of Dr. Who has the ability to transform and recreate himself many times over, so, appropriately, the BBC has continued to produce new episodes, despite the fact that the character first debuted in 1963. The modern revival of Dr. Who, which began in 2004, carries on the tradition of constantly revamping the show and replacing the actor who portrays the enigmatic hero. The fifth series (or "season" in American parlance) gives fans a new Doctor (Matt Smith) and a new traveling companion named Amy (Karen Gillan).

The Early Films of Peter

Greenaway: The Shorts
DVD 87 min 2006
"He has other reputations as well - as an academic, as a maker of curious artifacts, as a cataloguer of the bizarre and as a librarian of the absurd." Peter Greenaway might well have been describing himself in this thumbnail sketch of Canton Remodell, a character in an unmade project. Before his international arthouse hits like The Cook, The Thief, His Wife And Her Love and Prospero's Books, Greenaway made a series of highly inventive films that established all the obsessions that run through his later work. The content of the six playful shorts featured varies widely - from the condensed, wry history of 37 people who have fallen to their deaths from windows (Windows), to a sequence of 92 maps to guide a dead ornithologist on his way into the afterlife (A Walk Through H) set to a thrilling score by award-winning composer Michael Nyman (The Piano). All of these quirkily delightful works take great pleasure in outlandish detail, fake erudition and corkscrew narratives.

Ain't Scared of Your Jails (1960-1961): Black college students take a leadership role in the civil rights movement as lunch counter sit-ins spread across the South. "Freedom Riders" also try to desegregate interstate buses, but they are brutally attacked as they travel. No Easy Walk (1961-1963): The civil rights movement discovers the power of mass demonstrations as the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. emerges as its most visible leader. Some demonstrations succeed; others fail. But the triumphant March on Washington, D.C., under King's leadership, shows a mounting national support for civil rights. President John F. Kennedy proposes the Civil Rights Act.

Mississippi: Is This America? (1963-1964): Mississippi's grass-roots civil rights movement becomes an American concern when college students travel south to help register black voters and three activists are murdered. The Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party challenges the regular Mississippi delegation at the Democratic Convention in Atlantic City. Bridge to Freedom (1965): A decade of lessons is applied in the climactic and bloody march from Selma to Montgomery, Alabama. A major victory is won when the federal Voting Rights Bill passes, but civil rights leaders know they have new challenges ahead.

"The Time Has Come (1964-1966)", "Two Societies
(1965-1968)"

DVD 120 min 1990
DVD 2175

The Time Has Come (1964-66): After a decade-long cry for justice, a new sound is heard in the civil rights movement: the insistent call for power. Malcolm X takes an eloquent nationalism to urban streets as a younger generation of black leaders listens. In the South, Stokely

Carmichael and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) move from "Freedom Now!" to "Black Power!" as the fabric of the traditional movement changes. Two Societies (1965-68): Martin Luther King, Jr. and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) come north to help Chicago's civil rights leaders in their nonviolent struggle against segregated housing. Their efforts pit them against Chicago's powerful mayor, Richard Daley. When a series of marches through all-white neighborhoods draws violence, King and Daley negotiate with mixed results. In Detroit, a police raid in a black neighborhood sparks an urban uprising that lasts five days, leaving 43 people dead. The Kerner Commission finds that America is becoming "two societies, one black, one white, separate and unequal." President Lyndon Johnson, who appointed the commission, ignores the report. (b&w)

Eyes on the Prize, Volume 5:
"Power! (1966-1968)" "The Promised Land (1967-1968)

DVD 120 min 1990
DVD 2176

Power! (1966-68): The call for Black Power takes various forms across communities in black America. In Cleveland, Carl Stokes wins election as the first black mayor of a major American city. The Black Panther Party, armed with law books, breakfast programs, and guns, is born in Oakland. Substandard teaching practices prompt parents to gain educational control of a Brooklyn school district but then lead them to a showdown with New York City's teachers' union. The Promised Land (1967-68): Martin Luther King stakes out new ground for himself and the rapidly fragmenting civil rights movement. One year before his death, he publicly opposes the war in Vietnam. His Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) embarks on an ambitious Poor People's Campaign. In the midst of political organizing, King detours to support striking sanitation workers in Memphis, where he is assassinated. King's death and the failure of his final campaign mark the end of a major stream of the movement.

DVD 120 min 1990
DVD 2177

Ain't Gonna Shuffle No More (1964-72): A call to pride and a renewed push for unity galvanize black America. World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay challenges America to accept him as Muhammad Ali, a minister of Islam who refuses to fight in Vietnam. Students at Howard University in Washington, D.C., fight to bring the growing black consciousness movement and their African heritage inside the walls of this prominent black institution. Black elected officials and community activists organize the National Black Political Convention in Gary, Indiana, in an attempt to create a unified black response to growing repression against the movement. A Nation of Law? (1968-71): Black activism is increasingly met with a sometimes violent and unethical response from local and federal law enforcement agencies. In Chicago, two Black Panther Party leaders are killed in a pre-dawn raid by police acting on information supplied by an FBI informant. In the wake of President Nixon's call to "law and order," stepped-up arrests push the already poor conditions at New York's Attica State Prison to the limit. A five-day inmate takeover calling the public's attention to the conditions leaves 43 men dead: four killed by inmates, 39 by police.

DVD 120 min 1990
DVD 2178

"The Keys to the Kingdom (1974-80)": In the 1970s, antidiscrimination legal rights gained in past decades by the civil rights movement are put to the test. In Boston, some whites violently resist a federal court school desegregation order. Atlanta's first black mayor, Maynard Jackson, proves that affirmative action can work, but the Bakke Supreme Court case challenges that policy. "Back to the Movement (1979-mid 80s)": Power and powerlessness. Miami's black community – pummeled by urban renewal, a lack of jobs, and police harassment – explodes in rioting. But in Chicago, an unprecedented grassroots movement triumphs. Frustrated by decades of unfulfilled promises made by the city's Democratic political machine, reformers install Harold Washington as Chicago's first black mayor.

The Films of Kenneth Anger: Volume 2

DVD
DVD 1687
Perhaps the most important American experimental filmmaker of the post-war years, Kenneth Anger's provocative films influenced the likes of Fassbinder, Lynch, and Scorsese. This collection covers the second half of his career, when he returned to the States and confronted the youth culture with the gay mythologizing of Scorpio Rising (1964, 30 mins.), a montage masterpiece full of bikes, Nazi imagery, violent sex, and yes, Satanic symbols. This underground classic was followed by the black magic ritual Kustom Kar Kommandos (1965, 3 mins.), his attempt to summon the devil with Aleister Crowley's help in Invocation of My Demon Brother (1969, 12 mins.), the 1979 version of Rabbit's Moon (7 mins.), and finally, his hallucinatory opus, Lucifer Rising (1966-1980, 29 mins.).

The Films of Kenneth Anger, Volume One

Fox vs. Franken (Chris Hegedus and Nick Doob, 2004, 22 mins.) explores the constitutional right to parody with an examination of the frivolous lawsuit that Fox News levied against comedian Al Franken. Some Assembly Required (John Walter, 2004, 22 mins.), set against the backdrop of the 2004 Republican National Convention, probes the conflict between the public's right to protest and society's need for security. Finally, Poetic License (Mario Van Peebles, 2004, 22 mins.) is a portrait of activist writer Amir Baraka and an exploration of the First Amendment implications of state-sponsored art.

DVD 5455

8 disc collection of works by Chilean filmmaker Patricio Guzman, including: Battle of Chile:( in three parts, 1975, 1976, & 1978/96 min, 88 min, 79 min.) The epic chronicle of Chile's open and peaceful socialist revolution and of the violent counter-revolution against it after the overthrow of Salvador Allende's government by Augusto Pinochet. Chile, obstinate memory:(1997, 57 min) Visits with Chileans who experienced the coup first-hand (some of whom are seen in The Battle of Chile (Batalla de Chile) from 25 years ago). Survivors reminisce as they watch that film, recognizing lost comrades and recalling their courage, gaiety and love of life. Those who were not killed during the coup itself were crowded into the National Stadium in Santiago, where many were tortured, disappeared, and never seen again. Survivors talk about the terror that characterized the Pinochet regime until the dictator was finally obliged to relinquish power. The Pinochet case : (2001, 109 min) Investigates the legal case against Augusto Pinochet for crimes against humanity. Salvador Allende: (2004, 100 min) From his childhood in Valparaiso to his suicide following the Pinochet military coup on September 11, 1973, the life and works of Chilean president Salvador Allende, focusing on the three years following his election. Nostalgia for the Light: (2010, 90 min): Looks at the lasting impacts of Augusto Pinochet's dictatorship, focusing on the similarities between astronomers researching humanity's past, in an astronomical sense, and the struggle of many Chilean women who still search, after decades, for the remains of their relatives executed during the dictatorship. Extra features include "Filming Obstinate, Meeting Patricio Guzman", (2014, 98 min) by Boris Nicot; "An Interview with Patricio Guzman", (2008, 22 min), by Jose Carlos Avellor, five short films by Guzman, and a booklet with an essay by Jose Miguel Palacios.

DVD 5457

"Though her life generated voluminous literature, most people ignore the fact that iconic deaf-blind author Helen Keller (1880-1968) was one of the most passionate socialist advocates of her time. Continuing his work of patient and insightful political filmmaking, director John Gianvito (Profit Motive and the Whispering Wind) resurrects Keller's radical views, which have been largely suppressed or sanitized over the years. In Her Socialist Smile, he researches how, beginning in her early 30s, the pioneer leftist thinker fervently and eloquently spoke out on behalf of many progressive causes, from the rights of women and the disabled, to international socialism and world peace. Gianvito combines onscreen text taken from her most memorable public appearances, recorded voiceover by politically engaged poet Carolyn Forché, and quiet images of nature, creating another unique blend of activism, historical analysis and poetry. Reminding us that leftist struggles are inseparable from disability advocacy, Keller's words remain remarkably pertinent today."—Distributor's website

 DVD 1969

Directed by Matthew Galkin, I AM AN ANIMAL: THE STORY OF INGRID NEWKIRK AND PETA provides a portrait of a very private person committed to a very public crusade, and offers a glimpse into the inner workings of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals. The film includes often-graphic footage of animal cruelty that fuels many of Newkirk's campaigns against research facilities, meat-processing factories and clothing stores around the world. Without question, the direction and strategies of PETA are a direct reflection of its single-minded leader, who is both revered and despised for her uncompromising beliefs in the rights of animals, and her willingness to cross taboos and offend numerous groups to make her point.

 A look at the devastating effects of corporate media retail outlets on their independent competitors. The film focuses on the vibrant book cultures in Capitola and Palo Alto, CA, and the efforts of booksellers and readers to keep out Borders and Barnes & Noble and save the local bookstores from going under. The tenacity of the booksellers is only rivaled by the conviction of the "big box" representatives, who justify their presence in the community as encouraging a "freedom of choice" for the consumer.

DVD 2787

Meet the original Man Behind the Eight Ball, regularly put upon, ever frustrated, constantly aspiring, forever misfiring - and always the beloved butt of a cosmic joke. Joe McDoakes is the Everyman of Warner Bros.' series of one-reelers about a guy whose approach to everyday challenges or self-improvement made moviegoers howl from 1942 to 1956 (written and directed by Richard Bare). He was splendidly played by George O'Hanlon, later immortalized as the voice of another iconic frustrated character (albeit centuries in the future): George Jetson. From first (So You Want to Give Up Smoking) through 3 Academy Award?

nominees* (1947's So You Want to Be in Pictures, 1948's So You Want to Be on the Radio and 1949's So You Think You're Not Guilty) to last (So Your Wife Wants to Work), you can cheer Joe on - and he'll cheer you for sure - in this Complete 6-Disc Collection of All 63 Theatrical Shorts. (b&w)

The Judge & The General
 DVD 85 min 2008
 DVD 5175
 Documentary about Juan Guzmán's attempts to bring Augusto Pinochet to justice for human rights crimes. "When in 1998 Chilean judge Juan Guzmán was assigned the first criminal cases against the country's ex-dictator, General Augusto Pinochet, no one expected much. Guzmán had supported Pinochet's 1973 coup – waged as an anti-Communist crusade – that left the democratically elected president, Salvador Allende, and thousands of others dead or "disappeared." The filmmakers trace the judge's descent into what he calls "the abyss," where he uncovers the past – including his own role in the tragedy." (PBS website)

 DVD 63 min 1975
 DVD 3629
 A detailed reconstruction of the censorship case against the landmark Weimar-era communist film, Kuhle Wampe, or Who Owns the World? (1932). Directed by Slatan Dudow, the crew and cast included left-wing luminaries, such as playwright Bertolt Brecht, composer Hanns Eisler and balladeer Ernst Busch. The film was the subject of vehement disputes and was banned twice for revolutionary and communist tendencies that were perceived to threaten the state. Censored: Kuhle Wampe re-enacts the censorship hearings, based on original minutes and documents, as well as personal records of the case. In addition to footage from the original film, this docudrama includes original clips of Berlin in the 1920s and '30s and short testimonies, filmed in the 1970s, with some of the actors involved in the original Kuhle Wampe film production.

La Hora De Los Hornos
 DVD 240 min 1968
 DVD 2537
 The liberation struggles of the 1960s were a fertile seedbed for La hora de los hornos. Independence movements in the colonies and neo-colonies of the Third World, student revolts in the United States and Western Europe, and the brief protest by Czechoslovakians against the dull grey bureaucracy of the Soviet Union were the world context in which Fernando E. Solanas and Octavio Getino's film exploded. Argentina moved closer to a social revolution than it ever had before (or since), and Hora was an important expression of that movement, as well as a pivotal example for cineastes involved in national liberation movements throughout the world. The film is a documentary of such length (4 hours) that most viewers outside of Argentina have probably seen only the first part. Perhaps influenced by the work of the Cuban documentarist, Santiago Alvarez, the directors have created a film that takes the form of a didactic collage, committed to the denunciation of imperialism and its cultural influences. As is stated in the film: "Mass communications are more effective for neo-colonialism than napalm. What is real, true, and rational is to be found on the margin of the Law, just as are the people."  DVD 2030
 Sundance Grand Jury Prize-winning documentary from James Marsh about "The artistic crime of the century," Philippe Petit's illegal, not to mention insane, tightrope walk between the twin towers of the World Trade Center on August 7, 1974. Although he was arrested and taken for psychiatric evaluation, his feat (shown in the film mostly in still photos) was a success of planning, execution, and aesthetics. In addition to filming reenactments and interviewing Petit and associates about the planning (which was extraordinary in itself—Petit and company had to bypass Tower security, smuggle rigging and wire into the Towers, and set up rigging at night), the event, and the aftermath, Marsh incorporates the French daredevil's own footage captured back in 1974. Extras include the animated short "The Man Who Walked Between the Towers."

Mapantsula

DVD 105 min 1988
 DVD 5496
 "During demonstrations in apartheid-era South Africa, police arrest not only activists but also Panic, a "mapantsula" or petty gangster. While a cop tries to get him to make incriminating statements, we learn in flashbacks how Panic got caught up in the township riots. Panic is only interested in partying, alcohol, and his girlfriend Pat, and stays away from the protests against exorbitant rents. But then Pat, who loses her job as a house maid because of him, cuts Panic loose, and his landlady's son is taken away by the police...During the state of emergency imposed in South Africa in 1985, Mapantsula could only be made after a "bowdlerised" screenplay was submitted to the authorities. Grassroots opposition had reached a climax when the film was released and then promptly banned. Within a matter-of-fact crime story, it examines racial discrimination and day-to-day acts of resistance to the regime."—Summary from distributor's website.

The year 1642 marks the turning point in the life of the famous Dutch painter, Rembrandt, turning him from a wealthy respected celebrity into a discredited pauper. At the insistence of his pregnant wife Saskia, Rembrandt has reluctantly agreed to paint the Amsterdam Musketeer Militia in a group portrait that will later become to be known as The Nightwatch. He soon discovers that there is a conspiracy afoot with the Amsterdam merchants playing at soldiers maneuvering for financial advantage and personal power in, at that time, the richest city in the Western World. Rembrandt stumbles on a foul murder. Confident in the birth of a longed-for son and heir, Rembrandt is determined to expose the conspiring murderers and builds his accusation meticulously in the form of the commissioned painting, uncovering the seamy and hypocritical side to Dutch Society in the Golden Age. Rembrandt's great good fortune turns. Saskia dies. Rembrandt reveals the accusation of murder in the painting and the conspirators plan revenge. They set out to discredit him at home and abroad. They plant a treacherous mistress, Geertje, to seduce him. They try to blind him. They plan his social and financial ruin, and to create the circumstances for his slide into penury, insult his young mistress Hendrickje, conspire to destroy his son, and bring Rembrandt to his knees. The bold and courageous painting of the Nightwatch, exceptional in aesthetics and content, is Rembrandt's most celebrated painting, it consolidated his reputation as a master-painter but it also destroyed him socially and financially.

No job for a woman: the women who fought to report WWII

DVD 61 min 2011
DVD 3849

"Before World War II, war reporting was considered to be absolutely no job for a woman. But when the United States entered the war, American women reporters did not want to miss covering the biggest story of the century so they fought for and won access. But there was a catch: women reporters would be banned from the frontlines, prevented from covering front page stories about generals and battlefield maneuvers, and assigned woman's angle stories about nurses and female military personnel. Several women reporters refused to abide by these journalistic conventions and military restrictions and, instead, brought home a new kind of war story; one that was more intimate yet more revealing. They reached beyond the battlefield and deep into human lives to tell a new story of war."—Container.

On The Road With Charles Kuralt

DVD 378 min 1967
DVD 2497

In divisively partisan times, it is easy to feel disillusioned, pessimistic, or gloomy about the state of the union. Let Charles Kuralt drive your blues away. In 1967, the CBS broadcaster set out in a mobile home and went looking for America. Unlike Wyatt and Billy in Easy Rider, he found it. Along backroads and in small towns, he met ordinary people doing extraordinary things, such as an elderly woman who kept her privately-owned library open 24 hours, a man dedicated to fixing and lending bicycles to local children, and men who built the Golden Gate Bridge. On the Road became a popular feature on The CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite. Compiled by the Travel Channel, this 18-episode collection contains more than six hours of this Peabody and Emmy Award-winning series' most storied moments, and it never runs out of gas. This is reality television at its best and a celebration of the American character and "Yankee ingenuity" when we need it most.

The title of Lee Tamahori's breakthrough feature refers to the Maori people and their proud history. Set in an apocalyptic suburban New Zealand landscape, the film focuses on a dysfunctional family. The abused wife struggles to keep her family together despite the brutish and violent ways of her alcoholic husband, which, the filmmaker suggests, is a result of alienation from the authentic (Maori) culture.

 Operation Homecoming is a documentary that explores the firsthand accounts of American servicemen and women through their own words. The film is built upon a project created by the National Endowment for the Arts to gather the writing of servicemen and women and their families who have participated in the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Through interviews and dramatic readings, the film transforms selections from this collection of writing into a deep examination of the experiences of the men and women who are serving in America's armed forces. At the same time it provides depth and context to these experiences through a broader look at the universal themes of war literature.

Philosophers: Debates and Dialogues

DVD 311 min 1971
 DVD 3981
 Four-dvd set of one-on-one debates between the leading thinkers of the early seventies, brought together by the International Philosophers Project. The participants included intellectual superstars Alfred Ayer and Arne Naess, Karl Popper and John Eccles, Lesnek Kolakowski and Henri Lefebvre, and – most notably, in a now justifiably famous exchange – Noam Chomsky and Michel Foucault. In addition to the four conversations it contains an introduction and commentary by Dutch philosopher and writer Fons Elders. Program 1 : The Chomsky-Foucault debate has become a much studied classic. This DVD captures all the energy and passion of the two philosophers, as they discuss whether or not some form of universal human nature -an inherent ability to understand language and scientific concepts, for instance- exists, or whether our responses are purely socially and culturally conditioned – Program 2: A lively debate between British empiricist Alfred Ayer, who champions a limited skepticism, and Norwegian philosopher Arne Naess, the founder of the deep ecology movement, whose philosophy embraces interconnectedness – Program 3: Historian of science Karl Poppwer and his close friend, Nobel-prize-winning neuroscientist John Eccles, discuss Popper's famous criterion of falsifiability: the idea that a statement is only scientific if it could possibly be proved false, which he had articulated against the traditional positivist view of the scientific method – Program 4: Polish philosopher Leszek Kolakowski and French thinker Henry Lefebvre (both former Communist Party members) debate the ongoing significance of Marxism and the concept of alienation, while at the same time struggling to define what a future, post-capitalist society might hold. (from case notes.)

Silence Broken: Korean Comfort Women

DVD 57 min 1999
DVD1278
Dai Sil Kim-Gibson combines historical footage, interviews, and dramatic reenactments to tell the true story of Korean women forced to work as prostitutes for the Japanese Army during World War II. The Imperial Army lured more than 200,000 Korean women into forced sexual labor, often by claiming they were hiring teenage girls for high-paying factory jobs; the women who responded were taken without consent and put to work against their will as "Comfort Women." The first part of this film features interviews with several survivors of this tragedy, while the second half is a dramatic reenactment of the stories of three of these women being forced into prostitution.

Something To Do With The WallDVD 88 min 1989
DVD2460

Something To Do With the Wall began life in 1986 as a documentary about the 25th anniversary of the Berlin Wall. Filmmakers Ross McElwee and Marilyn Levine were still editing their film when, in 1989, the infamous Wall came down. McElwee and Levine returned to the site to film new scenes, and the result is this engaging "then and now" exercise. Having interviewed some of the more colorful and eccentric characters who habitually hung out around the Wall in 1986, the filmmakers bring these worthies back before the camera to tell the world what they've been doing for the past three years. It is this human element that elevates Something to Do With the Wall above the norm.

 Called "the television landmark that leaves other landmarks in the dust," by the Washington Post, the first part of Season Six was hailed as a masterpiece by critics. In those episodes, Tony Soprano faced new challenges as his life grew increasingly more complicated. Back together with Carmela, he faced the reality that their kids were no longer children, and yet not grown. And with Johnny Sack in prison, the always-tense relations between the New Jersey and New York families were strained even further. As Season Six continues, he'll be facing new stresses, including life-altering decisions at home, pressure from the law, and trouble on the job that leaves no one - no one - above suspicion.

 "In 2011, an archive of film and audio material re-emerged in Bissau. On the verge of complete ruin, the footage testifies to the birth of Guinean cinema as part of the decolonising vision of Amílcar Cabral, the liberation leader assassinated in 1973. In collaboration with the Guinean filmmakers Sana na N'Hada and Flora Gomes, and many allies, Filipa César imagines a journey where the fragile matter from the past operates as a visionary prism of shrapnel to look through. Digitised in Berlin, screened and live commented, the archive convokes debates, storytelling, and forecasts. From isolated villages in Guinea-Bissau to European capitals, the silent reels are now the place from where people search for antidotes for a world in crisis."—Spectre Productions website.

The Class
 DVD 130 min 2008
 DVD 2498
 Teacher François Marin and his colleagues are preparing for another school year teaching at a racially mixed inner city high school in Paris. The teachers talk to each other about their prospective students, both the good and the bad. The teachers collectively want to inspire their students, but each teacher is an individual who will do things in his or her own way to achieve the results they desire. They also have differing viewpoints on the students themselves, and how best to praise and discipline them. The administration of the school tries to be as fair as possible, which includes having student representatives sit on the student evaluation committee. Marin's class this year of fourteen and fifteen year olds is no different than previous years, although the names and faces have changed. Marin tries to get through to his students, sometimes with success and sometimes resulting in utter failure. Even Marin has his breaking point, which may result in him doing things he would probably admit to himself are wrong. But after all is said and done, there is next year and another group of students.

 A story of friendship, a retrospective, and a look at haute couture as business: we watch Valentino Garavani (1932- ) and partner Giancarlo Giammetti from preparation for the 2006 Spring/Summer Collection in Paris to a July 2007 retrospective of Valentino's 45-year career, which included dressing Jacqueline Kennedy. The film documents a year of work, shows, business changes, and decisions. We follow a creation from sketch to runway: he's always in pursuit of beauty. We're in Paris, Rome, and Venice. He receives the French Legion of Honor medal; his acceptance speech brings tears. Reporters ask when he'll retire. Is the Roman retrospective his career's finale? Cue Puccini.

Vampyr

DVD 75 min 1932
DVD 2027

Vampyr tells the nightmarish story of a young man who unwittingly becomes involved with two sisters and their father, all victims of a vampire. Dreyer has transformed LeFanu's horror tale Camilla into an abstract meditation on the theme of death, and his brilliant use of shadow, light, camera movement and settings are as unnerving today as they were upon this sinister film's release over 75 years ago. "A great vampire film. Dreyer preys upon our subconscious fears...its mood is evocative, dreamy, spectral" (Pauline Kael). In German with optional English subtitles. Criterion Collection Edition. Newly restored hi-def digital transfer of the 1998 film restoration by Martin Koerber and the Cineteca di Bologna. Includes optional all-new English-text version of the film, audio commentary featuring film scholar Tony Rayns, Carl Th. Dreyer (1966), a documentary by Jorgen Roos chronicling Dreyer's career, visual essay by scholar Casper Tybjerg on Dreyer's influences, a radio broadcast of Dreyer reading an essay about filmmaking, improved English subtitles, and a booklet featuring new essays by Mark Le Fanu and Kim Newman, Martin Koerber on the restoration, and an archival interview with star Nicolas de Gunzburg, as well as a book featuring Dreyer and Christen Jul's original screenplay and Sheridan Le Fanu's 1871 story Carmilla.  DVD 90 min 2011
 DVD 3778
 We Were Here documents the coming of what was called the "Gay Plague" in the early 1980s, focusing on 5 individuals who lived in San Francisco. They describe how their lives changed when their beloved city changed from a community of sexual freedom and social experimentation into the epicenter of a sexually transmitted plague. From their different vantage points as caregivers, activists, researchers, as friends and lovers of the afflicted, and as people with AIDS themselves, the interviewees share personal stories which also illuminate larger themes of that era: the political and sexual complexities, the emotional toll, and the role of women - particularly lesbians - in caring for and fighting for their gay brothers.
